AMENDMENT TO PROOF OF CLAIM

1. This proof of claim amends the following proofs of claim: # 4015 (Backus, D.); ## 4016, 4017 (Bookspan, R.); # 4018 (Kenney, Stephen); # 4019 (Mahoney, James R.); # 4022 (Marti, Thomas R.); # 4023 (McMurtry, David); # 4024 (Smith, Kevin R.). Each of the foregoing proofs of claim were filed individually and on behalf of the IT Corporation Deferred Compensation Plan, Eff. 1/1/96 (the "Plan" or "DCP"). Each claimant asserts claims for, inter alia, unpaid minimum funding contributions owing to the Plan.

2 Subsequent to the filing of the above proofs of claim, the Claimant along with other plaintiffs in the adversary proceeding Accardi et al v. IT Corporation et al., Adv. No. 02-05486, retrieved additional proofs of claim relating to unpaid benefits that, in turn, impact the Plan's claims for unpaid minimum funding contributions and the amount of the Plan's damages relating to the same. The Claimant and the Plaintiffs do not have proofs of claim and Statements of Account for at least 4 participants. Claimant calculates that the amount of unpaid benefits for approximately 60 participants, is $3,195,970, as of December 31, 2001, per Statements of Account provided by IT Corporation. Claimant's own Statement of Account as of December 31, 2001, is listed at $429,108.68

3. The Plan's damages for the failure to make contributions are the subject of expert testimony requiring a calculation of, inter alia, the projected retirement benefits provided by the Plan. See, e.g., Carabba v. Randall Food Markets, 145 F. Supp. 2d 763 (N.D. Tex. 2000). The retirement benefits include, without limitation, the interest accruing on each participant's account pursuant to paragraph 3.5 of the Plan. The calculation of projected retirement benefits will be based upon, in part and without limitation, the participants' account balances as of December 31, 2001.

4. The Plan's damages for prejudgment interest is the subject of expert testimony requiring a calculation of, inter alia, the interest accruing on each delinquent contribution as of the date the particular contribution came due under 29 USC section 1082. Due to the unavailability of expert analysis at this juncture regarding either of the foregoing issues, Claimant estimates the Plan's damages relating to unpaid minimum funding contributions to be, at least, $3,195,970.
